E. PRESENTATION - WEBER COUNTY BUSINESS STUDY.

Matt Hilburn, Research & Marketing Vice President of edcUtah, reported on the in-depth process started about a year ago regarding the data/research to identify key characteristics of Weber County businesses, the primary barriers to growth, the county's value proposition to existing businesses and potential solutions that stakeholders can help solve. He stated that Weber County, compared to other Utah counties in economic development, does an excellent job. The process included edcUtah sending an online survey to all businesses in the county with a valid email address (1,153 businesses completed the survey) and statistical analysis to evaluate responses and create predictive models. There was a lesser response of construction/architectural/engineering companies and a greater sampling of professional/business service companies but a close distribution by industry. The findings, which he reported were quite normal, included that 44%-79% of the companies in the county would choose to expand within the county. The analysis included how the county is doing with the companies that want to remain here, where it is not scoring well with those that wish to leave and where the county would want to market/educate/make policy changes. The most important metrics to businesses was transportation services. The summary solutions of things to consider included a pro-business environment, arts/entertainment scene, affordability/cost of living, and ability to attract talent. Mr. Hilburn addressed the commissioners' questions.

4. RESOLUTION CREATING THE WEBER COUNTY VETERANS ADVISORY COMMITTEE – RESOLUTION 9-2018.

Commissioner Gibson recognized the veterans present and stated that as a community we owe veterans for their tremendous sacrifice and have a responsibility to support them. He outlined the advisory committee’s purpose, board composition, terms, etc. Veterans Terry Schow and Frank Maughan had approached him with this idea to put a structure in place to help understand their challenges and needs. Mr. Schow said that because of the George E. Wahlen Ogden Veterans Home, millions of dollars’ flow into Weber County and help the veterans and their families. Utah is below the national average in the percentage of veterans enrolled in the VA healthcare and for receiving compensation and pension for service-connected injuries, and that it is a constant quest to get the word out. Frank Maughan, of Pleasant View, said that Mr. Schow involved him in this process stating there is a problem—that veterans do not know what they do not know.
